Trying To Tell The Truth About Yourself Is Harder Than Telling It About Others; Dean Acheson Set Policy For What's Happening In Poland-Hungary; It Could Also Happen In Red China.

WASHINGTON. - Now that it's spread out in cold type in the Saturday Evening Post with pictures, headlines, and all the trimmings. I'm beginning to get just a twinge of cold feet about those "confessions" of Drew Pearson

Of course I've peeked into the lives of a good many people. Allegedly I've crouched under cabinet tables. I've nagged and cajoled and criticized. I've upbraided and scolded all sorts, from bureaucrats to brass hats. But

In the first place, it's hard to tell the truth about yourself. Because almost every man considers himself a greater hero than he is. He can never put himself on quite the same lowly pedestal as the rest of humanity. He has to have that spark of conceit or pride that keeps him plugging along toward bigger and better things.

So when you strip yourself down and try to write about yourself as others see you and try conscientiously to tell the truth about all your own mistakes and foibles. well-frankly it's pride-shattering.

For instance when I sat down and tried to figure out whether Harry Truman was justified in calling me an "SOB" I had to admit in my heart that maybe he was. I don't think he was justified on the particular occasion that evoked his blast — General Harry Vaughan and his medal Dictator Peron. But there were plenty of other times when Harry was probably right.

Anyway when I tried to spell all these things out in black and white I found it was a much tougher job than I had ever dreamed. And now that the first issue is on the newsstands I'm beginning to get a little jittery and wonder whether it was a good idea after all. I predict my critics will get a kick out of it. And my friends -well maybe they won't read-or will be tolerant if they do.

ACHESON THREATENED JAIL One revelation I make in these Saturday Evening Post confessions is how Justice Felix Frankfurter asked Dean Acheson, then The members must have a 93 secretary of state, to have me eks and prosecuted for contempt of court then have an average of 90 for the after I had reported that Chief Justice Fred Vinson had had a purpose of the club is main- conversation with President Trutaining a better knowledge of man about John L. tary of state, among other things for giving foreign aid to Tito. He For it was the example of a Tito able to defy Moscow which set the pattern now being followed in Poland, Hungary, and probably for not betting all our diplomatic soon in Czechoslovakia.

Therefore, I as one who sometimes criticized Acheson and who have no reason to feel grateful for his aftempt to prosecute me, would like to recall that it was Acheson who set this wise but unpopular policy-and stuck to it despite the brickbats.

Thinking It Over

By Robert L. Dieffenbacher, D.D. (Written for NEA Service)

Worries are a very personal concern. Some people worry merely because they have cultivated the habit of worrying. They become upset about the weather or about a fleck of dust or about something else which appears unworthy of concern to many people. Other folk become disturbed about matters over which they feel they could have some control. They feel that they have detoured into a dead end street and they do not know how to get out. Many worry because they are lost and do not know where to turn for help.

Our concerns are real to us. They cause frustration, confusion. They make our activities ineffective. They block our thinking. They become obstacles over which we can-

We cannot understand why others do not share our troubles. Others could free us from our traps with a little effort. They could say a few words which would change situations. They could lend a helping hand, but they do not do it.

If we ask for help, we lose prestige. If we obtain a promise of assistance, we wait endlessly for others to move in their own time and in their slow ways. No one shares our concerns except God, and He seems too remote when human troubles beset us.

God does help us. We can pray and prayer does relieve the ten

Carnahan-Anderson Wedding Selemnized at Rocky Branch Secial Brethren Church

Saturday, Oct. 20, in a four o'clock ceremony Miss Guynelle Carnahan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Carnahan, Harrisburg RFD 4, became the bride of Fred N. Anderson, son of Mrs. Eugene Brown of Eldorado.

Rev. Earl Vaughn of Harrisburg performed the double ring ceremony at the Rocky Branch Social Brethren church. Vows were pledged before an altar decorated with baskets of white chrysanthemums and candelabra.

The bride, wearing a white street length dress with dashes of silver threads and a white sequin hat, entered on the arm of her father, to the lovely strains of "The Wedding March." She wore a gold diamond studded cross, a gift of the bridegroom, and carried a white Bible on which was placed a white orchid.

Betty Carnahan, Jackson, Mich., sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She chose a beige wool dress with matching accessories and carried a bouquet of pink fuji

Mr. Anderson chose as his best man his uncle, David Snedecor of Eldorado. Candle lighters were Frances Carnahan and Michael Church, cousins of the bride.

Ushers were Bill Gidcumb Jr. St. Ann, Mo., cousin of the bride, and Jim Anderson, Eldorado, brother of the bridegroom.

HOUSE BATTLE-Four hundred and thirty-two Congressional districts will elect representatives to Congress on Nov. 6. Of these, 92 are in so-called marginal districts (see Newsmap) that were won in 1954 by 55 per cent of the vote or less. It is in these districts, most of them outside the South, where the battle for House control will be fought. The Republicans have 61 doubtful seats to defend this year, almost twice as many as the Democrats, who have 31. The party that wins control of the House has won every presidential election except one (in 1916) since 1896. In 1876 Samuel J. Tilden got 250,000 more popular votes than Rutherford B. Hayes, but Hayes still won the election because he got more electoral votes.

Each state's electoral vote is equal to its total number of Senate and House seats.

There have been 13 times in history when a president was elected without getting a majority of the popular vote cast. In most of these cases, that happened because there were more than two presidential candidates polling a sizeable number of votes.

Trumes an Example

In 1948, for example, Preside Truman didn't get a majority of the popular vote but he got 203 electoral votes—37 more than the 266 needed for election. Mr. Truman had a popular vote of 24,105,-312, compared with the 24,730,787 polled by all other candidates.

Aside from Hayes and Truman other presidents who were elected without getting a majority of the popular votes included Woodrow Wilson (twice), Grover Cleveland (twice), Benjamin Harrison, James A. Garfield, James Buchanan, Zachary Taylor, James K. Polk and John Quincy Adams.

When no presidential candidate gets a majority of the electoral votes, the election is thrown into the House of Representatives for a

In parts of the country the paper ballot has been discorded in favor of the mechanical ballot. The voting machine seems destined to become an increasingly important factor in American elections.

Governor, Senator Battles Fought On Bossism, Peace and Prosperity

SPRINGFIELD (P) - Scandal, "bossism," and Republican "peace and prosperity" are the issues on which the battles for governor and U. S. senator are being fought in Illinois.

Matched in the fight for the governor's chair are Republican incumbent William G. Stratton, a political veteran at 42, and Cook County Superior Court Judge Richard B. Austin, a newcomer to state politics at 55.

In opposite corners in the contest for the U. S. Senate are GOP incumbent Everett M. Dirksen, of Pekin, and Democratic State Rep. Richard Stengel, of Rock Island. Both candidates for governor have chosen as their favorite campaign targets men who are not running for governor. Austin has banged away steadily at the Orville E. Hodge million-dollar scandal. Stratton has countered with charges that the administration of former Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson was riddled with horsemeat and cigaret tax scandals.

Stratton is making his 15th statewide campaign, including primarles, and he has been beaten only twice, once in the primary and once in the general election for secretary of state.

He was elected congressman-atlarge at the age of 26, served two terms as state treasurer and another term as congressman-at-large. The amended banking law would retain the prohibition against branch banking; more specifically outline the supervisory authority of the state auditor with regard to bank operations, examinations, liquidations, and receiverships; permit bonus and pension plans for bank employes and officers; coordinate merger and conversion provisions with federal laws; provide patterns for voluntary dissolution of banks; and recognize and coordinate the state law with the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, which came into existence after the 1919 law.

Highlights of the revision: It provides that the auditor may take possession of a bank for 30 days for purposes of reorganization as an alternative to receivership or liquidation; whereas chartering of a bank was largely automatic after the necessary capital had been raised, the revision gives the state auditor discretion to decide if "the future earnings prospects are fav-orable" before chartering a bank; and a new exemption from basic loaning limits permits loans upon livestock collateral up to 30 per cent of a bank's state capital and

Tornadoes Hit Midwest

By United Press A band of tornadoes dropped from the skies and punched away at the nation's breadbasket Mon-

The twisters were set off when a mass of frosty air stumbled into a hot air belt. A frontier of thunderstorms was set up from the Dakotas southward into Kansas and Nebraska and into Western Texas. As the front moved eastward Monday night, severe weather bellowed over most of the Midwest.

A tornado dipped into Great Bend, Kan., injuring one man and causing at least $250,000 worth of damage. Police said some 30 homes were damaged when high winds removed roofs and puffed out windows.

Don Bryant suffered minor injuries when another twister struck his farm at Rozel, Kan. A light airplane and several houses were damaged by the wind near Dorrence, Kan. Two farms near Halford, Kan., were visited by tornadoes earlier in the day.

Another man was seriously injured and several others believed hurt when two farms were flattened by a twister that struck near North Platte, Neb. A man identified as Ben Yates was hospitalized and the state safety patrol was alerted to prepare for more injuries.

The unruly weather was expected to growl eastward into the western Great Lakes region today and range southward, through Missouri into western Arkansas and northern Texas.
